

Faculty of Graduate Studies

The Faculty of Graduate Studies was established in January 2015, with the goal of enhancing the University's research degree programmes. High quality research has become as important as teaching to gain better international recognition and competitiveness. Research, being the cornerstone of an academic career, is a key factor in retaining the high-calibre academics that the University is home to.

The FGS, together with the officers of research and International Relations, seeks to enhance these programmes through strategies to attract high quality students, to explore new research partnerships and funding opportunities, and to strengthen the research eco-system within the University.
